New President

THE idea that only Americans have any real interest in the outcome of the Presidential elections is a myth too fanciful even to be entertained. Mr. Khrushchev and the Kremlin hierarchy, Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai and even Cuba's bearded wonder were as interested in the result as Mr. Macmillan, Mr. Nehru, Mr. Ikeda of Japan and Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos. All had different reasons for their interest. We make no secret of the fact we are highly pleased with the result though we say hard luck to Mr. Nixon who fought so hard and lost so narrowly.

The other day we referred to Mr. Kennedy's inexperience but this is not an insuperable obstacle to making a good job of the Presidency. He has got fresh ideas and a new slant on a number of problems which have become rather fossilized after eight years of Eisenhower administration. That he is prepared to saddle himself with such a big job at the age of 43 is a credit to him and his youth and vigour will stand him in good stead.

HE should not be afraid to look American policy all over the world square in the eye and reshape it, drastically if necessary, in order to make it conform to prevailing conditions and to current feelings. A popular appointment to Secretary of State would be Mr. Adlai Stevenson, who would bring to the job a clear mind and a thorough and intelligent grasp of the world situation, which would counteract any doubts about Mr. Kennedy's ability in the initial stages to make big decisions affecting not only America but the Western world.

If there is anything that Hongkong wishes particularly it is that Senator Kennedy will resist any pressure to impose obstacles in the way of local export trade with the United States, and in view of America's desire to have her wealthier allies share the burden of economic aid, our own preference for trade not aid should be appreciated and welcomed.

The more general wish which Hongkong joins the rest of the free world in extending to the new President is that America may rise to new heights of greatness, that its prestige may be restored fully, that relations with its allies are strengthened, that freedom everywhere may be more honestly respected and that peace, or its modern equivalent, co-existence, may be more securely established throughout the world.

KHRUSHCHEV—Friends

WHERE
SLIPPED

Hyannis Port, Nov. 10. His campaign manager said today that Mr. Kennedy could not have won the Presidency if Vice-President Nixon had not agreed to their nationally-televized debates.

The manager, Mr. Robert F. Kennedy, the winner's brother, said without the debates "It wouldn't have been close."

And he said it would have been difficult if the debates had been on radio alone.

The Senator, he said, was helped by his appearance and the way he handled himself. And the debates, Mr. Kennedy added, "pulled the rug out" from under the argument of immaturity. —AP.

'We are ready
relations'

Moscow, Nov. 9.

Mr. Khrushchev today congratulated President-elect John Kennedy on his US election victory and told him that he hoped Soviet-American relations would again follow the line of President Roosevelt's time.

Then the official Soviet news agency, said Mr. Khrushchev's age assured "Senator Kennedy that the Soviet Union was ready to continue efforts to solve such issues as disarmament and the German issue."

He said the Soviet Government would always support moves to bring about an easing and improvement of the international situation.

Mr. Khrushchev's message said: "Esteemed Mr. Kennedy—Allow me to congratulate you on the occasion of your election to the high post of the President of the United States."

The line

"We hope that while you are in this post the relations between our countries will again follow the line along which they were developing in Franklin Roosevelt's time, which would meet the basic interests not only of the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States, but of the whole of mankind which is longing for deliverance from the threat of a new war."

"I think you will agree that the eyes of many people are fixed on the United States and the Soviet Union because the destinies of world peace depend largely on the state of Soviet-American relations."

"We have declared, and declare, our respect for the peaceable and gifted people of the United States and we are ready to develop the most friendly relations between the Soviet and the American peoples, between the governments of the USSR and the United States."

"We are convinced that there are no unremovable obstacles to the preservation of consolidation of peace. For the sake of this goal we are ready, for our part, to continue the efforts to solve such a pressing problem as disarmament, to settle the German issue through the earliest conclusion of a peace treaty and to reach agreement on other questions whose solution would bring about the easing and improvement of the entire international situation."

"Any steps in this direction will always meet with the full understanding and support on the Soviet government."

"I wish you fruitful activity in the responsible capacity of United States President and prosperity of the American people," Mr. Khrushchev's message said.

The message was also broadcast by Moscow in its main evening news bulletin (tonight) and was followed by a short biography of Mr. Kennedy. —Reuter.

'ALSO AGGRESSIVE AND REACTIONARY'

No different from
Nixon, says Peking

London, Nov. 9.

The Communist New China News Agency declared today that President-elect John Kennedy, of the United States, is no different from defeated Vice-President Richard Nixon "in pursuing the aims of the aggressive and reactionary policies of the U.S. ruling circles."

Mr. Kennedy, it added in a Peking statement, seized on the failures of the Republican Administration's domestic and foreign policies and merely attacked them so as to increase his own political capital.

"But Kennedy's campaigning programme shows that he is no different from Nixon in pursuing the aims of the aggressive and reactionary policies of the US ruling circles."

"What is more, they have very different methods for realising these aims. Kennedy particularly stresses the need for further taxation and more inflationary measures to greatly increase military spending and extend war preparations."

Other reactions

Indian Prime Minister Nehru said he was pleased with the election of Democrat John Kennedy, "who is a friend of India and Asian countries." A more liberal US policy could now be expected for backward countries.

French President de Gaulle welcomed Kennedy as a "partner."

"I send you my friendly congratulations, and, in the name of France, my best wishes for the United States."

British Labour opposition leader Hugh Gaitskell said he was sure the new administration would be "progressive and positive in the search for peace and based on a real understanding of the needs and forces in the modern world, as well as on a true partnership between America and her allies."

Liberal Party leader Jo Grimond commented that "Kennedy's victory shows the thirst there is in America for new thinking and new action in politics."

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro today treated the American Presidential election practically as though it had not happened.

He recalled that he has already called Kennedy and Nixon a pair of "stupidities." —All Agencies.

IKE PREPARES TO HAND OVER

Washington, Nov. 9.

President Eisenhower this morning held a Cabinet meeting at the White House, mainly to discuss arrangements for the transition period between now and January 20, when the next President takes office after being formally inaugurated.

The President promised before the election to help the successful candidate to pick up the reins of government. One particular field in which this is expected to be done is that of the budget for the year beginning next July, which President Eisenhower must present to Congress before he leaves office.

Observers expected him to suggest to President-elect

Kennedy that he send a representative to work on the budget, with Presidents customarily offer amendment to their predecessors' budget to conform with their policies.

Observers thought similar co-operation would probably take place in the foreign affairs field. —Reuter.

President-elect John F. Kennedy discusses his election victory over Richard Nixon at a press conference today at his home at Hyannis Port, Massachusetts.

On the platform is his wife, Jacqueline, who smiled when Kennedy told newsmen:

"My wife and I now prepare for a new administration — and a new baby."

CALLS
EFFORT'

Washington, Nov. 10. John F. Kennedy, elected US President in an exciting climax to a campaign of unmatched rigour called on the nation (today) for a supreme effort "to move this country safely through the 1960s."

The slender, 43-year-old Boston Democrat, youngest man and the only Catholic ever to be elected President, happily acknowledged his victory over Vice-President Richard M. Nixon in an afternoon news conference at Hyannis Port, Massachusetts.

With his wife, Jacqueline, standing beside him in the town armoury, he capped his sober plea with a flashing smile and this whimsical comment: "Now my wife and I prepare for a new Administration and a new baby." (She expects a baby in three weeks' time).

An Hour

It was only about an hour and a half earlier that Kennedy had clinched the headline popular vote victory, when Minnesota after long hours of teetering plumped at last into his column. Minnesota's 11 pushed his electoral vote total to 272. Nixon then had 177.

It took 289 to win. At that point, California and Illinois among the big states were still to be decided. Illinois a little later went for Kennedy with its 27 electoral votes. Kennedy was leading for the 32 in California, Nixon's home state.

It seemed possible that Kennedy's electoral vote total might go to 338.

Record number

—AND STILL MORE TO COME

Washington, Nov. 9. Almost 66 million votes for the total cast in Tuesday's voting have already been counted — a record for any election.

Tabulation at 10 am Hongkong time listed 33,051,811 votes for President-elect John F. Kennedy and 32,861,993 for Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon.

The grand total of 65,913,794 compares with 62,025,376 votes cast in the 1956 election, the previous record.

There were still more than 6,000 precincts not reported in the Kennedy-Nixon contest.

The complete total vote, which may not be known for another month, will be swelled by the votes in these precincts, some absentee ballots not yet counted and the ballots cast for minor party candidates.

The 1956 total includes 417,000 votes for minor candidates. In that election Dwight D. Eisenhower got 35,375,420 votes and Adlai Stevenson 25,038,085.

Although he lost the election, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon got a higher popular vote — more than 32,800,700 — than any winner of the Presidency except President Eisenhower. —AP.

De Gaulle moves swiftly in Algeria

THREATENED REVOLT SAID CHECKED

Paris, Nov. 9.

The Government has acted swiftly and firmly to prevent a threatened spread of revolt among senior French officials, in Algeria against General de Gaulle. This followed Monday's declared "inability" by Mr. Andre Jacomet, the top civil servant in the Algerian administration, to carry out the declared policy of the President of the Republic.

This morning the Cabinet, presided over by General de Gaulle, refused to consider Mr. Jacomet's resignation. Instead they summarily dismissed him from his post.

They also suspended him from exercising his functions as a senior member of the Council of State, France's highest judicial body.

The penalty is without precedent except in some cases immediately after the war arising out of collaboration with the enemy.

INCOME REDUCED

By suspending him from exercising his functions as a member of the Council of State, the government has reduced Mr. Jacomet's income by about 50 per cent.

It has also, in effect, barred him from obtaining further high level government employment.

GEN. DE GAULLE

Mr. Jacomet may even be dismissed from the Council of State altogether in which case he will be left without his pension rights.

The Cabinet ministers were unanimous in taking this decision which they considered was calculated to make anybody think twice who was contemplating initiating Mr. Jacomet in challenging the right of the executive to define the policy of the country.

The Jacomet case is the first encounter in the new trial of strength between President de Gaulle and his adversaries, set in motion last week when he announced that Algeria would in like this of his "own government" and when he let fall a reference to a future "Algerian republic."

One effect of De Gaulle's stand over Algeria and his refusal to be intimidated by his own civil servants has been to bring the leftwing parliamentarians, but not the Communists, back into his orbit of influence.

The Socialist Party organ Le Peuple, which reflects the view of the Socialist leader Guy Mollet, wrote today:

"There is hardly any doubt that Frenchmen would once again approve the action of the head of the state if he were again placed in a situation like that of last January (when there was a revolt against the De Gaulle government in Algeria). This is what eventual imitators of Mr. Jacomet should try to understand."

IN ALGERIA ALSO

In Algeria itself the Cabinet's chief representative Mr. Paul Delouvrier is also reported to have come out on top in the test of authority between the government and certain rebellious officials.

The conservative Paris Presse called from Algiers today "there will be no more spectacular resignations like that of Mr. Jacomet."

"At most there will be a few changes in two or three months for those who persist in hostility to the government."

Reports of unrest among army officers also appear to be exaggerated or fostered by De Gaulle's political opponents.

General Jean Crepin, French Commander-in-Chief in Algeria, just back from a tour of inspection, declared that he could discover no sign of unrest.

Nevertheless, rumours of action by the ultra-nationalists continue to circulate here and in Algiers. The authorities in Algiers think the armistice demonstrations of November 11 might take a more serious turn as a demonstration against De Gaulle.—Reuter.

He said that a reception for close friends will be held afterward at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.—AP.

50 arrested as plot discovered

San Jose, Nov. 9. The Costa Rican government today said it had discovered a revolutionary plot being hatched inside Costa Rica by Nicaraguans against the government of neighbouring Nicaragua.

About 50 Nicaraguans were arrested, including Dr. Enrique Lacayo, leader of the opposition to President Luis Somoza's Nicaraguan government. Report from Guernica said a rebel group there captured the local commander after he got wind of their plans. No other details were immediately available.—AP.

Votes may now go to Nixon

Honolulu, Nov. 9. Hawaii's three electoral votes, originally recorded for President-elect John F. Kennedy, may belong in the column of Vice President Richard M. Nixon because of auditing errors.

Final unofficial totals announced by the office of Lieutenant Governor James Kealahe gave Kennedy the win by a hairline margin of 102 votes.

But later William N. Kaina, administrative assistant to Kealahe, said a 200-vote error was discovered that might change the winner.—UPI.

London, Nov. 9. A guard in a wages car saved about £13,000 when six hooded bandits held up and robbed him here today. He flung himself over bags containing the money on the floor of the car.

The upper house of the French legislature adopted, after a spirited debate which lasted past midnight, a motion to table the striking force bill. The vote was 183-83 in favour of tabling with 60 abstentions. The striking force bill will now either go back to the Assembly for a second reading or to a joint Senate-Assembly committee for work on a possible compromise measure. It will be up to the government of Premier Michel Debre to decide on what course to follow. But since Senate approval is not absolutely necessary for final enactment of the bill it still appeared likely that De Gaulle will win legislative approval of the plan.

INDIRECTLY

The measure was adopted indirectly in the Assembly last month when a censure motion against the government over the matter failed to win the necessary number of votes. A second reading and approval in the Assembly would mean adoption of the bill with or without Senate approval. However, the opinion in the Senate corridors after the vote was that the government probably would first seek to gain Senate approval through bargaining.

The striking force plan has provoked bitter opposition from de Gaulle's legislative critics who feel that it is too costly, too little and will be too obsolescent by the time its atom-bomb-equipped fighter-bomber squadrons begin to appear.—AP.

Laos Govt. seeks front with Pathet Lao

Vientiane, Nov. 9. A representative of the pro Communist Pathet Lao movement, who is conducting negotiations here with neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma, said today that the main aim of the talks was to set up a coalition national front government against the rightists.

Pathet Lao representative Colonel Singkhar made the statement today after a government delegation returned here last night from a three-day visit to Sam Neua in the north where it had conferred with Pathet Lao chief Prince Souphannouvong. The delegation included Captain Khong Lee the paratrooper officer whose Vietnamese military coup last August led to the formation of Souvanna Phouma's neutralist government.

Information Minister Quinim Phasana, another member of the delegation, said he was bringing a message from Souphannouvong to the Premier but declined to reveal its contents.—AFP.

BUZZING QUEEN'S COMET AIRLINER

BRITAIN IS 'SATISFIED'

WITH EXPLANATION

London, Nov. 9.

Mr. Julian Amery, Air Minister, said today that the British Government was satisfied "that the German pilots did not realise the Queen was in the plane and therefore there was no intended discourtesy."

Earlier he had told the House of Commons that an Anglo-German committee of investigation of the alleged buzzing of the Queen's Comet by German jet fighters, was satisfied that since weather conditions were clear and the fighter pilots had the Comet in view the whole time, there was no danger of a collision.

Mr. Amery said that the German authorities had been given all the necessary information about the outward and return flights of the Comet and had promulgated these to all the airfields.

"It is possible, it seems to us, that had special instructions been given, or a reminder issued, the incident would not have taken place," Mr. Amery said.

Mr. Amery added that it had never been the practice to do this in the past, but this was one of the points being looked into. One lesson to learn from the incident, was to take up with European neighbours some agreed procedures to cover the flights of heads of states.

It was clear in unofficial Whitehall circles in London tonight that no action is being taken against either German or British pilots as a result of the alleged "buzzing" incident.—Reuter.

EISENHOWER SENDS CONGRATULATIONS TO KENNEDY

Washington, Nov. 9.

President Eisenhower today sent his congratulations to Democratic President-elect John F. Kennedy "for the victory you have just won at the polls."

The President said he will send the new President-elect a more comprehensive message later suggesting certain measures that may commend themselves to you as you prepare to take over next January the responsibilities of the presidency.

The message to Kennedy was released by the White House together with three other telegrams. They went to the losers, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and to the Vice President-elect, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson.

In his message to Nixon, Mr. Eisenhower said: "Your hard-fought courageous campaign to carry forward the principle of sound government will have my lasting respect."

"It has been a matter of deep personal satisfaction to have served closely with you these past eight years and I shall always cherish your friendship."

FORMAL

Eisenhower's message to Kennedy, sent to the Hyannis Port, Massachusetts home of the President-elect, was far more terse and formal, it follows:

"My congratulations to you for the victory you have just won at the polls. I will be sending you promptly a more comprehensive telegram suggesting certain measures that may commend themselves to you as you prepare to take over next January the responsibilities of the presidency."

Later President Eisenhower took off for Augusta, Georgia, and a golfing vacation.

He was grim but he paused on the steps at the request of two photographers and gave a brief smile in a thumb's up gesture. He had no comment.

Mr. Richard Nixon's message to Mr. Kennedy was: "The American people have spoken. Congratulations and best wishes on your victory as President Elect."

Mr. Nixon had waited until the last moment before conceding defeat because the ballot results from California and Illinois were not up to them conclusive.

However, when the Minnesota result was known the Republican candidate summoned his chief aides to his hotel room and they there decided to send Kennedy the concession telegram without waiting further for the results of the two other key states.

These could give Nixon a popular vote majority though not an electoral college majority. At the moment of his concession Mr. Nixon had carried 177 electoral votes.

At that time also Mr. Kennedy had 314,993,562 popular votes against 31,010,340 popular votes for Nixon.—AP.

Governorships

New York, Nov. 9. The last four governorships of the 27 at stake in the current US elections went to three Republicans and one Democrat, a final total of 16 to 11 and a net gain of two for the Democrats.

Governor Orville Freeman of Minnesota, the Democrat who had nominated Senator Kennedy as Presidential candidate at the Party convention last summer, and had been tipped as a possible Secretary of Agriculture in a Democratic Cabinet, lost to Mr. Elmer Anderson, Republican.

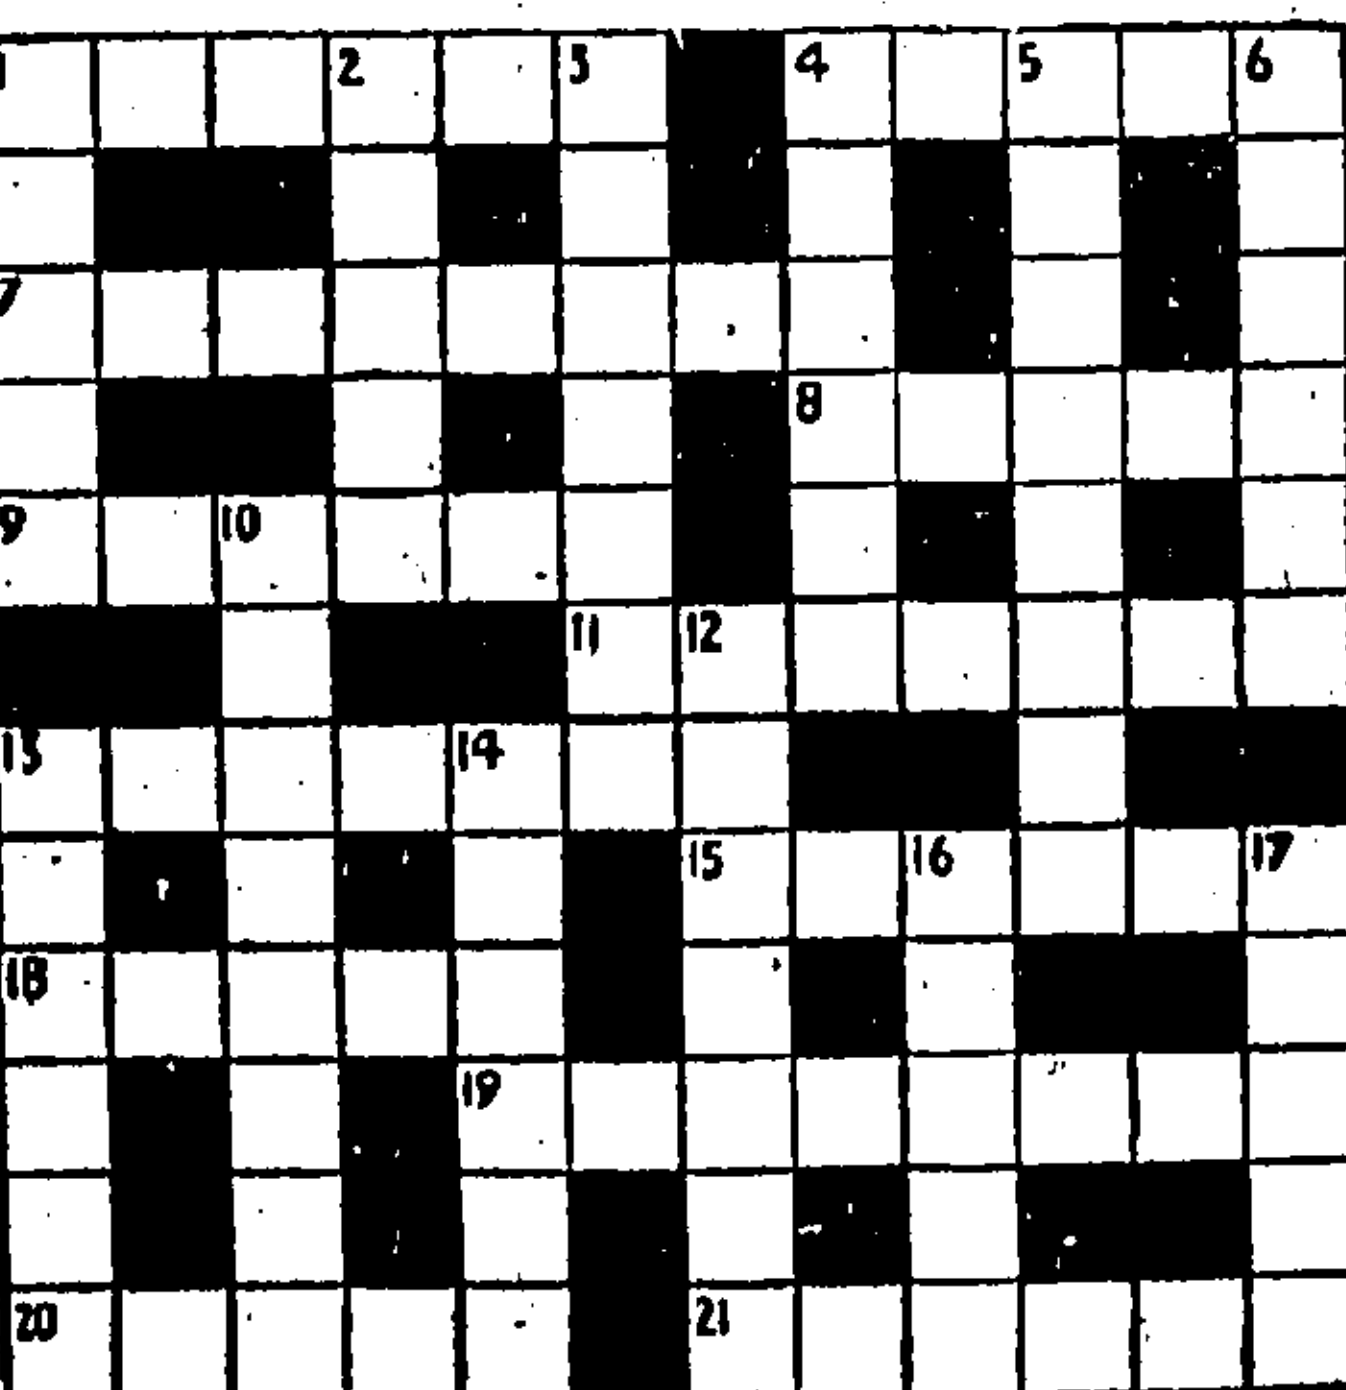

There were other Republican gains from Democrats in New Mexico and South Dakota among the last state houses to be decided.—Reuter.

Why Belgians did not ask the Queen

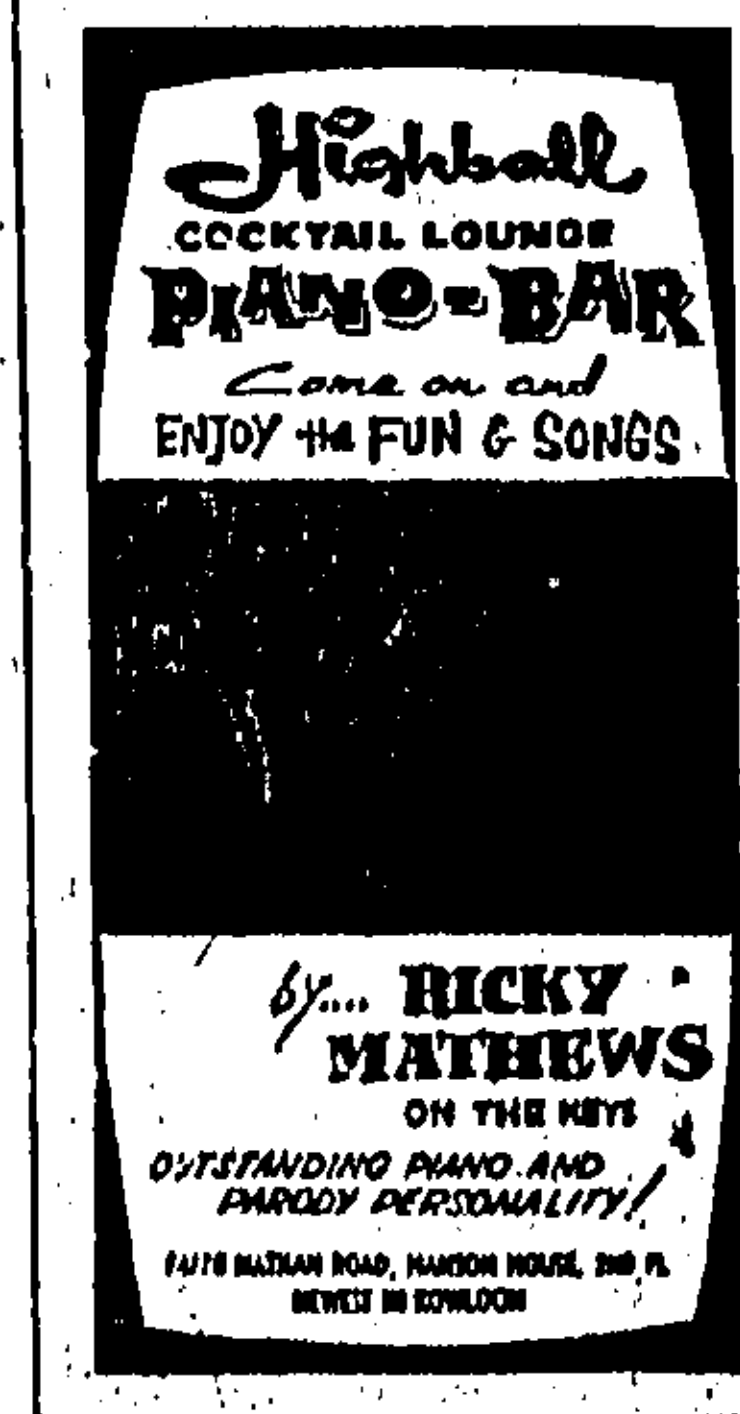

Brussels, Nov. 9.
Belgium hopes the Duke of Edinburgh or another member of the Royal Family will represent the Queen at the wedding of King Baudouin to Dona Fabiola on December 15, according to usually well-informed circles.

An official source said the Queen was among a "considerable number" of chiefs of state who have been invited to send representatives to the ceremony. Another was General Francisco Franco of Spain, whom observers believe to be the reason for the restricted number of personal invitations and the rather unusual-sounding form of "invitation to send a representative."

The Belgian Royal Court and government are believed to wish to avoid at all costs the widespread adverse reaction among Belgian public opinion to the Spanish generalissimo's presence at the wedding is thought likely to provoke. General Franco is expected to be represented by his daughter and son-in-law, the Marquis and Marquise de Villaverde. Other heads of state not invited personally are expected to send members of their family or their ambassadors in Belgium. Sources close to the throne said Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg had been invited because their countries were partners with Belgium in the Benelux Union. King Olaf of Norway—the bridegroom's uncle—had also been invited.—China Mail Special.

They slept in the desert and were supplied with food by an RAF desert rescue team.

The Air Ministry spokesman said that their trek was a race against time as they started off on the day before their 19th birthday, and 19 was the age limit for the award, which is designed to encourage initiative and adventure in youth.

Their gold medals would be presented to them by the Duke of Edinburgh at Buckingham Palace, London, in December. They would return from Aden in about four weeks time, the spokesman added.—China Mail Special.

Husband-wife team ending long flight

London, Nov. 9.
A young British Army captain and his wife were today on the last lap of a 7,000-mile flight in an Auster aeroplane, bought specially for the trip, from Malaya to England.

The couple, Captain Michael Somerton-Royner, aged 20, and his wife, were today reported to be weather-bound in Dijon, France, and were not expected to arrive in England before Friday.

Captain Somerton-Royner was transferred from 656 Squadron Army Air Corps, stationed at Kuala Lumpur, to the Corps centre at Middle Wallop in Hampshire. He and his wife left Malaya on October 1.

Their route has taken them over Burma, India, Pakistan, Iran, Iraq, Libya, Tunisia, Sardinia and France, where they had planned to spend two days in Paris before crossing the English Channel.—China Mail Special.

HER SECRET OF LONGEVITY

Nottingham, Nov. 9.
Mrs Mary Ellen Downham, married for 76 years, said on her 100th birthday that she had avoided quarrels by following the policy "silence is golden." Her husband John will be 100 next May.

At her home she said: "When he was irritable, I just kept quiet."

A constant stream of callers brought birthday telegrams, flowers, cards and cakes. Among the guests was their doctor, who brought a box of chocolates and announced: "They are both in good shape." Queen Elizabeth sent a telegram congratulating Mrs Downham and saying she looked forward to sending similar greetings shortly to Mr Downham.—China Mail Special.

Britain's first live missile launched

London, Nov. 9.
The first live missile ever fired in Britain took place today when "Honest John," a 27 foot American artillery weapon, was successfully launched.

Mrs Kennedy 'exquisite' First Lady

London, Nov. 9.
British newspapers tonight called Jacqueline Kennedy the "most exquisite" first lady in the history of the United States.

The writer of the "Londoner's Diary" in the Evening Standard commented: "Whatever the Republicans think of the new man in the White House, most of them will admit that they have the most exquisite first lady in the history of the presidency."

The diarist added that Mrs Kennedy "wears good clothes well" and was regarded by the fashion trade as "fantastically chic."

America's new first lady was also "sensitive, shy with strangers and highly individual" with a "basic irreverence for politics and a serious interest in the arts."—China Mail Special.

Captain to face court-martial

Canberra, Nov. 9.
The Captain and First Lieutenant of the Naval armaments store carrier HMAS Woomera will face a court-martial over the loss of the ship on October 11.

The Woomera blew up and sank while dumping obsolete ammunition off Sydney heads. Two lives were lost.

The Minister for the Navy, Senator Gordon, said the decision followed conclusions reached by a Naval Board of Inquiry held immediately after the accident.—China Mail Special.

Canberra, Nov. 9.
The Australian literary censorship board has been asked by the Australian government to "have a look at D. H. Lawrence's novel 'Lady Chatterley's Lover.'"

"Honest John," a three-night divisional support missile was fired at a demonstration for senior army officers.

The warhead, designed to carry a 1,450 pounds weight atomic bomb, was today packed with concrete.

It was fused to explode and destroy itself five thousand feet up over Salisbury Plain, about six miles short of Devizes, Wiltshire.

After the count-down and firing the rocket flame could be seen for miles, and left behind it a 90 foot scorch mark around its launcher.

The demonstration went without a hitch.—Reuters.

TOMMY STEELE A HIT IN OLD VIC

London, Nov. 9.
British rock 'n' roll singer Tommy Steele, 23, made a hit last night at the Old Vic Theatre here when he played his first "serious" role.

He took 12 curtain calls after playing, without a falter, the role of Tony Lumpkin in Oliver Goldsmith's classical comedy "She stoops to conquer."

The traditional Old Vic "roar" broke from the gallery as people stamped and cheered.

An Old Vic official said: "We were very proud of him."—China Mail Special.

'SHAME ON AUSTRALIA'

Perth, Nov. 9.
Australia should be ashamed that most of the money for cancer research in Australia came from the British Empire Cancer Campaign Fund, Professor R. E. Tenseldam told reporters here today.

"We should bow our heads in shame at the way we neglect to provide funds for this and other 'medical research,'" he said.

Professor Tenseldam, of the medical school of the University of Western Australia, added: "Far too much of our money for cancer research comes from the British Empire Cancer Campaign Fund and from American sources."

His cancer research in New Guinea was financed by the United States, he said.—China Mail Special.

THE DAVID SHERRER WAITED IN THE AFRICAN SCRUB...

So six idle months have gone by

by John Cruesemann

SOMEWHERE in the B.B.C.'s archives at Lime Grove, a most interesting file has been pigeon-holed and gathering dust since last February.

In it is a letter from a young man who wanted to work in television. Producing and so on.

On the face of it, at the time, his prospects were excellent.

He seemed to be a talented and experienced fellow, and he was certainly ambitious enough.

A fortnight after he sent in his application, the young aspirant got engaged, and two months later he was married.

I suppose that would seem, to most people, a good reason for pressing ahead with the B.B.C. The work is interesting and they pay well.

But marriage appears to have put paid to his hopes.

For he married into the Royal Family.

And Antony Armstrong-Jones has not done a stroke of work since May 6.

Lively

The honeymoon is over; the house-moving is over; the Highland holiday is over. What is Tony going to do?

First of all, dismiss the notion that he is lazy.

He is one of the liveliest, most industrious men in the country, absolutely miserable if he is not busy. We can be quite certain that Tony wants to work.

He never imagined for a moment that marriage to Princess Margaret would mean he had to spend the rest of his life in elegant inactivity.

Remember that at the very time he was discussing with Haw Wheldon and Peter Newington, at Lime Grove he was also discussing his forthcoming engagement with the Royal Family at Buckingham Palace.

I don't suppose he told BBC men about his Palace talks, but he certainly must have told the Royal Family about Lime Grove.

Precedent

And who would have been Tony's most enthusiastic, most knowledgeable supporters? For he is very keen on television work too, although he prefers performing to producing.

Remember his admirable hour-long television commentary on films of his world tour?

Not only was it good, it established — or seemed to establish — an important precedent.

Members of the Royal Family, Prince Philip demonstrated, were not above ordinary, simple, non-ceremonial work.

Why, it seems reasonable to me to ask, does not this excellent principle apply to Tony?

For months now there have been rumours that Princess Margaret's husband was about to start a job.

HE WAS GOING to join the family stockbroking firm in the City. Splendid.

HE WAS GOING to work at Covent Garden, like his uncle, Oliver Messel. And like his relative by marriage, the Earl of Harewood, First rate.

But he didn't.

HE WAS GOING to work on theatre design.

HE WAS GOING to do publishing.

HE WAS GOING to return to architecture, which he studied at university. Jolly good ideas, if only he got on with them.

Why not? Is there some quaint old Palace objection to jobs of this kind?

Well, even if there is, there can surely be no complaint about the Civic Trust, a highly reputable, non-profit-making, important concern which aims to produce a significant improvement in the appearance of streets and buildings all over the country.

Before...

The Civic Trust job was not just a rumour. It was very seriously considered only a few weeks ago.

The idea was that Tony should travel around the country as the Trust's top photographer. Not, perhaps, the most exciting job for a world-famous professional. Even so, a worthy, fruitful, and perfectly proper task.

And the last news of that proposal is that Kensington Palace has "cooled off the idea."

Tony Armstrong-Jones must be the most frustrated man of talent in Britain today.

Mark you, he is not the first to be confined in comfort at Kensington Palace. Another young man once sat there, biting his nails with boredom because, married to a royal Princess, he was not allowed to work.

Who was he? Queen Mary's father.

What did he live in Kensington Palace? Nearly 100 years ago.

How time stands still.

Bertram Jones looks ahead to the day fast approaching when Japan becomes an economic giant

A FACT BRITAIN CANNOT IGNORE

The truth about our competitors

I WENT shopping here the other day—and found out that Britain is going to face tougher and tougher trade competition. I joined throngs of cheerful Japanese whose yen are setting the cash registers ringing constantly.

And I wandered around their amazing department stores, which stay open even on Sundays to cope with the spending spree.

Just to let you know what sort of competition Britain is facing, let me tell you that I bought a vast pocket radio—six transistors, about the size of a 20-cigarrette packet, and with our plug that cuts out its tiny loudspeaker for private listening—for £4 6s., and a first-class miniature camera for £6.

First-class

James Hagerly, the White House Press Secretary, used a very similar camera to photograph riot mobs rampaging around his car at Tokyo Airport last June—and got results of magnificent quality.

You're probably thinking that neither radio nor camera is any good; that both are sweated labour junk, and that being so I have been cheated.

How wrong you are! What's more, it's dangerous thinking.

I assure every British manufacturer and every British workman who grumbles about profits and wages that these are first-class products.

And the men and women who made them—at prices that have helped the Japanese export trade to hit a staggeringly high level—have never considered themselves so well off.

Like Britons, the Japanese have never had it so good. Men's wages have now soared to an average of £20 16s. 2d. a month, and women's to an average of £11 8s. 4d.

Some women, though, can earn as much as £20 a week.

Climbed back

From 80 per cent destruction under wartime bombing just over 15 years ago, Japan has climbed back to a level that even the Germans—who have the knack of turning defeat into victory—must envy.

TALKING POINTS

All men are frail but thou shouldst reckon none as frail as thyself.

—THOMAS A KEMPIS.

A few honest men are better than numbers.

—OLIVER CROMWELL.

The answer to our prayer may be the echo of our resolve.

—LORD SAMUEL.

—(London Express Service).

A phenomenal expansion of 17 per cent in the national economy in one year has been achieved. Now where Britain goes wrong is in thinking that all this has been done on wooden clogs and two bowls of rice daily. Nonsense.

Japan's income per head of the population is one of Asia's highest. "Oh Asia," you say impatiently, with all the wrong images in mind.

Just to bring you down to earth: one in three Japanese families has a washing machine. Ninety-two out of 100 own a radio.

Taller

Tokyo's new 1,091ft. high television mast—higher than the Eiffel Tower—spreads TV to almost every corner of the land.

The traditional fish, rice, and pickled vegetables are so supplemented by Western diets that the Japanese will grow as tall as Britons 40 years from now.

Already their height and weight are increasing.

The legs of school desks and chairs are already having to be lengthened, and train seats are being remodelled.

Houses and flats are being built with bigger doors. Door knobs and bathroom washbasins are being raised.

In 10 years, production of crude steel has leaped from just under 5,000,000 tons yearly to 18,000,000. Refined oil products have soared from less than 1,750,000 tons yearly to 22,000,000 tons.

Shipyards are launching nearly 1,750,000 tons a year instead of less than half a million.

Although Japan no longer has an empire to absorb the surplus population, its four main islands—of which less than one-fifth is fit for farming—produce 85 per cent of their own food, and support 20,000,000 more people than they did before the war.

Electric trains pass through Tokyo's Central Station, to split-second timing, at the rate of one every 37 seconds.

No smugness!

Customers are ushered into lifts and encouraged on and off every escalator by delightful girls in uniforms and white gloves, twittering in polite Japanese: "Thank you for your honourable patronage. Please come again." (I wish I got the same flattering attention in take-aw-leave-it Hong-kong, where I live).

In new £1,000,000 night club—the Mikado—will add its neon brilliance to the city's rainbow night signs before long.

It will seat 1,200 (more than London's Hippodrome) and will have a dozen of 80 dancing girls—pulsating Paris Lido's high-dipping beauties.

Short of a world-wide recession, nothing can stop Japan.

No wonder that when I switched on my £4 6s. transistor radio I found myself listening to a rebroadcast of Prime Minister Ikeda's triumphant pronouncements to Parliament.

Japan is out to help its youth to pour out its native talent and energy into an even greater reconstruction, he said.

Stable

In his own words: "The old easy-going practice of relying on advanced Western nations' studies will be rectified, and we will endeavour to develop techniques of our own."

They are already doing it. Even American manufacturers are copying a little black winking doll that immediately became the rage of Tokyo's children and made its designers rich quickly.

And the Japanese, far from complaining, are delighted because they feel this pirating in reverse vindicates them from charges that they are uncreative and have to copy other people's ideas.

Japanese prices are the most stable in the world, which may come as a bit of a jolt to Britons.

As a warning against smugness too I must tell you that the quality controls insisted upon by America—which imports millions of dollars' worth of Japanese goods annually—have lifted Japan's higher grade products to a level that Britain cannot afford to ignore.

Forget all about thick spectacles and cherry blossom. There are 93,000,000 patients, industrious, uncomplaining people knocking at the world's front door, with excellent goods at very reasonable prices.

And that should be a thought to get you to work five minutes before time every morning.

Is the archbishop right to go? A look at the most controversial meeting since the Reformation

FINE—if we don't expect too much

by DR. MERVYN STOCKWOOD
Bishop of Southwark

NOVEMBER 1 was one of the great festivals of the Church, All Saints Day, and throughout the Christian world millions took part in services of thanksgiving. But the thanksgiving became jubilation because of the imaginative lead that has been given by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Eighteen months ago I had the privilege of a private interview with the Pope. He told me how much he hoped that one day he and the Archbishop might meet. I told him that I shared his wish, but I thought it might be difficult, in view of our history, for the Primate of All England to be seen inside the Vatican, or for the Pope to set foot inside Lambeth Palace.

Pope John appreciated the position but reminded me that the prayer which is rooted in charity can accomplish much. And he has proved his point.

Separation

Dr Fisher, now well on in his seventies, is to give further proof of his remarkable vigour by making a pilgrimage to the Holy Land towards the end of this month. On his return he will visit the Patriarch of Constantinople and the Pope of Rome.

Long before the Church of England separated from Rome, the Churches in the Eastern countries did.

The Churches are known as the Orthodox and they are the dominant Christian bodies in Russia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Greece, the Middle East.

The chief bishop, comparable to the Pope or to the Archbishop, is Athenagoras I, the Patriarch of Constantinople. As Constantinople is not in a Communist country and as most of the other Orthodox churches are Athenagoras has a difficult job.

In fact, since the Russian Revolution it has been impossible for the Orthodox to hold a joint conference. But the Church of England has been a valuable go-between because, although we do not fully recognise one another, our relationships are good.

And there is no doubt that as a result of Dr Fisher's visit they will improve further.

There have been no dealings between the Primate and the Pope since the Reformation. For years the position was as bad as it could be, with excommunications and threats of war hurled through the air.

In recent years there has been a slight improvement, but the suspicions and years' war-sides are still formidable. By and large the efforts to improve relationships have proved abortive.

Whatever the rights and wrongs may have been, the fact is that Geoffrey Fisher and Pope John refuse to take No for an answer.

Both are dedicated to the cause of unity; both are natural reconcilers; both are big-minded and big-hearted; both know more about us ecclesiastical than most of us ecclesiastical; and most important of all, both believe that Jesus meant what he said when he prayed that his disciples should be one.

Care taken

But it would be foolish to minimise the difficulties. We have recently had a sorry example of a Summit conference which ruined the expectations of the optimists and made confusion more confounded.

Summit conferences cannot produce satisfactory results unless there has been careful preparation and agreement behind the scenes.

The gulf between the Church of England and the Church of Rome is very wide, and it is not easy to see how it can be bridged. And some of the differences are fundamental.

But at least we can make a start. And that is precisely what Geoffrey Fisher and John XXIII are doing. I know nothing of the inner secrets, but I imagine that it is a case of two Christian men, both bearing great responsibilities, wanting to meet one another on the personal level.

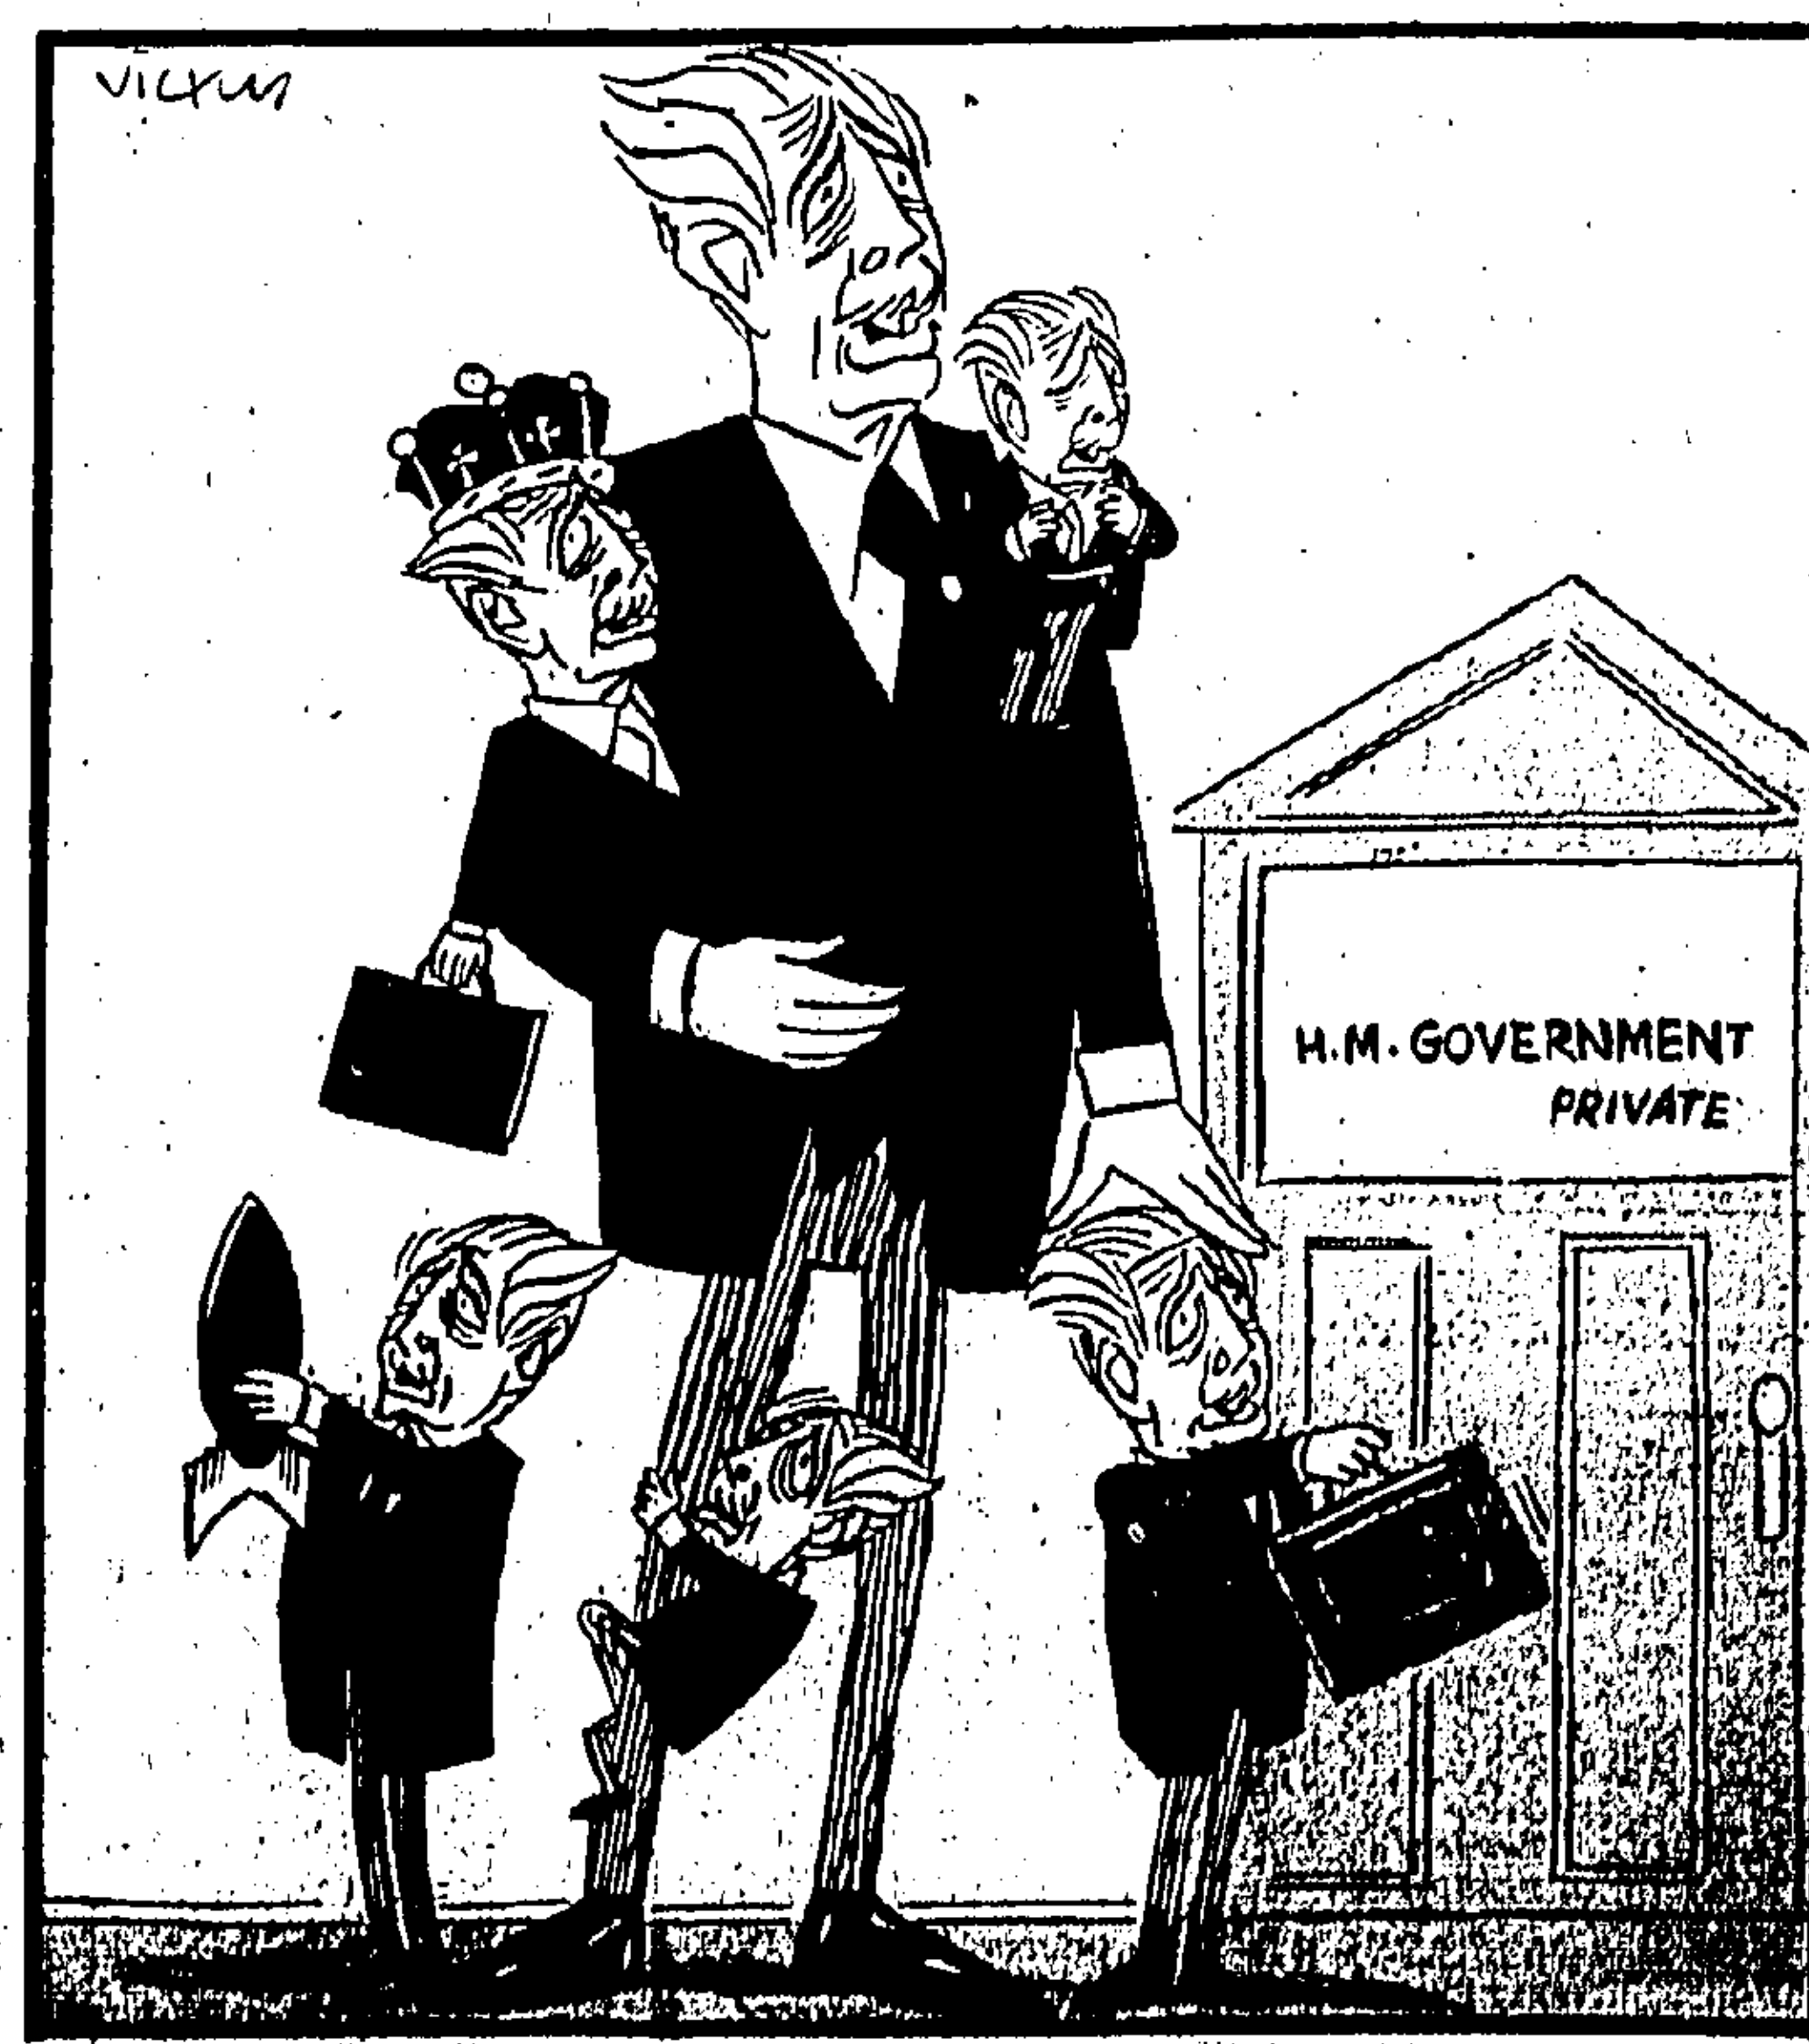

Don't commit

In doing this they do not commit their Churches to anything.

But the mere fact of the meeting is a challenge to the Christian world.

It calls upon us to throw away hatred, bigotry and suspicion and to show in our attitude towards other Christians the charity and big-mindedness that characterises the forthcoming meeting between Primate and Pope.

RUGBY VICTORIES OVER CLUB SELECTION AND COMBINED CIVILIANS AT CLUB STADIUM

By 'PROP'

The Navy came ashore last night and their raiding party which made a sortie to the Club Stadium had a most successful evening, and deservedly so. After a close win by the "B" side over the Club Selection by a penalty goal to nil, the senior side took on the Combined Civilians and were worthy winners by the margin of 14 points to six.

The Club Selection brought in Wiggitt on the wing in place of the redoubtable A. N. Oher, and fielded a fairly strong side in the first game of the evening. The Navy forwards, as time after time they regaled ground lost by their backs with uncertain handling.

Navy vs Combined Civilians

The big game of the evening started with a flurry as Cadwell burst for the line, but the Civilians came back into the picture after a fine knock-kick by Wilson.

Another long kick, this time by Moore put Civilians into an attacking position which they hung on to until awarded a penalty close to touch inside the Navy "25". Moore saw his kick go just wide of the left post and the Navy had another chance.

A period of great pressure by Civilians nearly led to a try, but Wilson after a lovely run was bundled into the corner flag by a great tackle.

Dwyer was dominating the set scrums at this period and was gaining the ball in the line-outs. Straightaway D'Eath put in a high cross-kick but it was a little too deep and Navy were saved. Navy had most of their work in the loose but here they found Roberts in fine fettle.

The Civilians' fly-half was over in the corner for a try but the referee ruled that he had lost possession and disallowed the effort.

Civilians tried very hard to make up lost ground but the Navy kicking was too good for them.

With one glorious burst from his own line Wilson swung play to the other end but to no avail. Bedford and Orler led a good footrush which died a similar death as Navy refused to give up their hold on the game.

Bullock with the last move of the game scored a lovely try from the half-way line which McKenzie had little difficulty in converting into a goal, as the final whistle sounded.

LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL NOW A POPULAR SPORT IN HONGK

OVER 100 POINTS IN 6 MATCHES Springboks keep Rugby unbeaten record with 12-0 win over Cambridge U.

Cambridge, Nov. 9. The South African Rugby Union team defeated Cambridge University by 12 points to nil here today.

The win boosted the Springboks' points aggregate to more than 100 in the six games of their tour.

A crowd of 6,000 saw the South Africans overpower the University in an exciting game on a soft ground. They scored two tries in each half but failed to convert any of them.

The South African tries were scored by Hendrick Pelsor, Avril M. van der Merwe, and Hendrick van Zyl. Gideon Wentzel was the unsuccessful kicker after the first three tries and David Stewart failed to convert the last one.

Fifth win

Cambridge had won nine of their games this season and only lost to Cardiff. The South Africans have now won five games and drawn one.

The University was the first team to look dangerous after Bill Beesey kicked ahead. In the face of the onrushing Cambridge forwards, Wentzel was able to fly-kick into touch.

The Springboks were the heavier team, but the Cambridge forwards often worried them by their speed.

The South Africans were mostly on the defensive until the 24th minute, when they went into the lead. Keith Oslee was tackled on the Cambridge "25" and Pelsor picked the ball up and charged over for a try.

Cambridge counter-attacked and might have scored but for a knock-on. Then aggressive play by the South Africans ended with Mullan scoring a second try a minute before half-time.

Home International soccer win for Scotland

POOLS MONEY COULD HELP PUT FOOTBALL ON ITS FEET

Don't murder the little clubs

I am living through the most exciting adventure of my life. Crystal Palace are top of the Fourth Division. I have never known a happier club in football.

By ARTHUR ROWE

Crystal Palace manager
(in an interview)

Things are right, at the top, by which I mean in the board-room, and for the Palace the future is unlimited.

In terms of population, ground potential, enthusiasm, everything you can think of that any club might need, Crystal Palace can one day become one of the biggest clubs in England.

So where does that put a club like ours against the whole pattern of football?

Well, when I hear plans coming from the North that there should be a fixed wage scale for every division of the League, with wide differences between First and Fourth, I am disgusted.

IT'S NEGATIVE

This would be the end of the ambition in small clubs. It would mean other people deciding how we spend our money. It would murder the little clubs. It is negative and unnecessary.

I don't want to see clubs put out of existence. In fact I would welcome more clubs in the League. They can find their own level. There is no law to say that every footballer must be a full-time professional.

Men's "D" Div: KCC v CCC; St Stephen's v Chung Cheong.

Ser. Mixed Doubles Div: CCC "Green" v CCC "Yellow".

I would rather have 20 players paid £40 a week than have 40 players paid £20 a week. The directors of clubs should have the right to decide.

There is no law to say how many players a club may employ. At the same time, I am convinced football must now do some hard rethinking about the entire game as a public spectacle. It must fight the battle with cinema, television, theatre, coffee bars, and all the endless recreations of people these days.

That means good play on the field. It also means comfortable surroundings and conditions in which to see the match. Our grounds must be modernised. That takes money, and I see no reason why some central fund, like the League's pools money, should not be made available for this purpose.

I believe that the League Cup, and the various proposals regarding wages and League reconstruction and so on, are evidence that the administrators of the game realise all this and see the need for change.

£1,500 A YEAR

I do not believe the time is ripe for free contracts for the players. That will come. But first everyone must be conditioned to the top footballer as a £1,500-a-year man.

We must try to talk simple sense in all these things. Football is a simple game—11 men on each side and one ball. Too many people try to make it an abstract thing.

Given reasonable equality in technique, the team with the most strength of character and personality will win. That is what I keep preaching to my players.

We have gone as far as we can with the physical aspect of the game, in training. What we must develop is the psychological aspect.

A player is in possession of the ball for about three minutes in each match. We must learn to condition his thinking about what he is doing, and the positions he is taking up, for the other 87 minutes.

SPECIALISE? NO

I do not want centre-halves and outside-rights and so on in my team. I want footballers. The game has suffered from too much specialisation in play, with positions.

The England performance against Spain in this respect, was the most wonderful and encouraging thing that has happened to our football in the past 10 years.

There was an England team that showed the work, that played without inhibitions, with complete free expression.

And finally, to all the people who moan that things ain't what they used to be in football, I am convinced that the game overall is very much better than it was when I was a player—and that's not a century ago! —(London Express Service).

Real Madrid, Barcelona draw 2-2 in rough European Cup match

Madrid, Nov. 9. Spain's two rival top teams Real Madrid and Barcelona drew two-all at the Santiago Bernabeu Stadium here tonight in the first leg of their eighth-final match in the European Champion Clubs Football Cup.

Half-time score was two to one for Real.

Real's first goal came in the first minute of the match when Mateos, on a pass from Gento, drove in a tremendous shot that Barcelona's goalkeeper had no chance to save.

The Madrid eleven then re-lined for a period although Puskas, Pachin and Gento staged several attacks. The visiting team, however, had two dangerous attacks by Villarverde and Suarez, both of which were stopped by Real's back Marquitos at the expense of two corners.

From the 22nd minute the game became harder. Barcelona's Rodri caused an incident when he ran down Gento, and the referee ordered a free-kick for the visiting team. Then Real's Marquitos stopped a high ball with his hand. Suarez equalised by converting the free-kick.

The Madrid team, title holders of the Champion Clubs Cup since the Cup was founded, made strong efforts to regain the lead, and Gento scored the second goal for his club in the 32nd minute.

The second half started in deep silence on the part of the 100,000 crowd. Both teams staged rush attacks and both goalkeepers were frequently in action. In the 85th minute the referee disallowed a goal scored by Barcelona's Pachin and from then on the match degenerated almost into a free-for-all with the referee blowing the whistle frequently, and even temporarily halted play on one occasion.

The equalising goal for Barcelona came two minutes before full time, when Vicente, the Madrid goalkeeper, was penalised for a foul against two Barcelona forwards.

The penalty kick was converted by Suarez.

The return match will be played on November 23.

The teams

Real Madrid: Vicente, Pachin, Casado, Vidal, Marquitos, Di Sol, Herrera, Mateos, Di Stefanos, Puskas and Gento.

Barcelona: Ramalliet, Rodri, Gracia, Verges, Garay, Gensana, Villarverde, Evaristo, Kocsis, Suarez and Cibor.—AFP.

Some pleased but others decide to 'wait and see' HK REACTION TO KENNEDY

Welcome by Chamber of Commerce Chairman

The election of Senator John Kennedy as the new American President kindled new hope in some people in Hongkong but others, mostly businessmen and industrialists, adopted a "wait and see" attitude.

Mr G. M. Goldsack, Chairman of the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce was optimistic.

"We, the businessmen are happy about the election result. The American presidential election has little bearing on our

"I have previously met him and think he has all the qualifications for an American president.

"Mr. John Kennedy is, however, the choice of the American people and during my two visits to the United States this year I had felt that he had popular support.

"He may be a few years younger than Mr. Nixon but is, I believe, equally capable of assuming the monumental role of President of USA.

Dynamic

"We can look forward to a dynamic period of change and progress in the next four years. At no time in modern history is the need for strong and constructive leadership in the free world greater than now. Mr. Kennedy will have to prove himself equal to the task."

Reactions were divided 50-50 among the local Americans. But thousands of people called up the American Club yesterday and swarmed its lounge, dining room and bar.

MR GOLDSACK

future trade with America," he said.

"We should not have any trouble in exporting to U.S. so long as we improve the quality of our products and diversify. We hope the new president will lead the world to a peaceful settlement of all problems between the east and west."

Not for us

Mr Brook Bernacchi, Chairman of the Reform Club, told the China Mail, "I would say that the American presidential election is largely a matter for the people of U.S. People of other countries should not express their views publicly. I am sure when Mr. Kennedy takes up the office, he will continue the policy of close agreement with the British Government and I congratulate him on his success."

MR BERNACCHI

Mr Milton Cheong-Leen of the Civic Association said, "Many in Hongkong may feel it a cause for regret that Mr. Richard Nixon, who is well-known in Hongkong for his support for the New Territories in his name, has not been elected the next president of the United States."

MR CHEONG-LEEN

MR AL KAY

Mr Al Kay, Publicity Director of PAA, who kept awake 24 hours before the election results, said "The three phones we set up in the lounge never ceased ringing."

Reflection

"We put notices on all incoming flights and hotel rooms to that both the tourists and the local people might know. Up at the American Club, it was just a reflection of two warring groups, 'very happy' and 'very unhappy'."

"Following the result, some celebrated with champagne and some consoled themselves with whisky."

"The Chinese? They were reticent."

MR ERNEST WONG

Mr Ernest C. Wong, Vice-President of the Chinese Manufacturers' Association, had this to say: "Most of us have to wait and see how the policy of the new US government works out. We have been afraid all the time that this 'voluntary ceiling' business will spread over all Hongkong industrial products, starting from textiles."

"Mr Kennedy has full support from the U.S. industrialists. It becomes a guess just how far he would toe the lines of U.S. industrialists."

"As US is our big customer, the industrial problem is vital to Hongkong. During the past six months, Hongkong exports to U.S. have been declining. We hope they will pick up again."

Mr N. C. Chang, Chairman of the Hongkong Weavers Association, said quietly, "Let's wait and see. It's still too early to make any comment."

WOMAN JAILED

A 24-year-old unemployed woman, Lee Tong, was sentenced to two years' jail by Mr I. M. S. Donnell at North Kowloon Court this morning for possession of 3½ oz of heroin.

Defendant pleaded guilty. Sub-inspector I. W. Elias, prosecuting, said that on November 8, a party of police raided the defendant's hut at the rear lane of Fuk Wah street where they found 650 packets weighing three and a half ounces. Defendant told them she was suffering from an ulcer and had bought $400 worth of the drug for her own use.

New US refugee organisation

Another American refugee organisation will set up its office in Hongkong next spring.

The International Rescue Committee of New York City has appointed Mr Hallett L. Rose to be Director of the new office. Mr Rose told reporters this morning that the Hongkong office would be the second branch of the IRC in Asia. It would help refugees to be resettled abroad and assist them locally to make their living. He said that the refugees would mostly be resettled in Latin American countries.

He said the aim of the organisation was to render assistance to "victims of totalitarian aggression."

TRIAD FIGHTER SENT TO JAIL

A food stall foki who pleaded guilty to being a "fighter" in the Tai Ho Choy triad society was sentenced this morning to six months in jail.

Tsang King-chi, alias Tsang Wu-long, 25, of 8 Hing Cheung, Joo, ground floor, appeared before Mr D. Com at Central Court.

Detective Sub-inspector R. G. Laurel, prosecuting, told the court Tsang was arrested on November 3, following three weeks of investigation touched off by an anonymous letter to the Commissioner of Police.

Tsang told police he joined the triad society in 1956, according to Tsang Laurel. In 1958 he was promoted to the official rank of "fighter" after showing prowess in a fight in the Kowloon Walled City.

Insp Laurel said that the Tai Ho Choy is a comparatively new society, and came into being shortly after the Kowloon riots in 1956. Members and office-bearers were very active in the Kowloon Walled City.

He added that these activities were short lived however. In 1958 the majority of the principle office-bearers were arrested by the police and subsequently jailed or deported.

The defendant had two previous convictions for wounding, one for disorderly conduct and one for gambling.

Governor visits Kowloon Police

The Governor, Sir Robert Black, visited Police establishments in Kowloon this morning. He was accompanied on his 2½-hour inspection tour by the Commissioner of Police, Mr H. W. E. Heath.

The Governor first went to Kowloon Police Headquarters in Nathan road where Sir Robert met a number of senior Police officers and inspected the Kowloon Control Room.

The Assistant Commissioner of Police, Kowloon, gave the Governor an account of the Kowloon Police Command structure and the problems that arise from day to day.

Sir Robert next visited the newly-built Police rank and the quarters situated on reclaimed land at Chungshawan before visiting the Shamshuipo Divisional Headquarters.

From there the Governor went to the Divisional Headquarters at Kowloon City, Hungghon and Yau-mati. At each Divisional Headquarters, Sir Robert met a number of officers and showed keen interest in divisional organisation and problems.

ALLEGED INDECENT ASSAULT ON BOY

A nine-year-old boy was given $1 after two men had committed on an unnatural act on him, the Victoria District Court was told this morning.

Before Judge P. R. Springall, Jagjit Singh pleaded not guilty to a charge of indecent assault on a male.

Mr D. E. D'Almada Remedios, Crown Counsel, said the boy claimed to be 13 years of age but a bone specialist at Queen Mary Hospital found him to be only nine.

Mr Remedios said two men had taken the boy for some food at a street stall on September night and later took him to a hillside near Soy-street, Mongkok, where they allegedly assaulted him.

Crying

Later, Mr Remedios said, the boy followed the two men, crying all the time. He was given $1 but he still pursued them.

One of them then tried to chase him away, and as he fled, the two men boarded a taxi. Mr Remedios said the boy later reported the matter to a police constable.

Hearing continues.

Letters from you to the editor

US Presidential election dear sir

Such was the importance attached to the US Presidential Election that it has merited two editorials in our Press—your own of Tuesday, November 8 and your morning contemporary the South China Morning Post of yesterday, November 9, and the result announced last evening has justified all expectations, for in spite of his youth and alleged inexperience Presidential - Nominee Jack Kennedy has been elected by an overwhelming majority.

This indicates the American people's better sense this time, based on more on sentiments but on reality, as despite Kennedy's initial handling on religious ground—he being a Roman Catholic—he is the people's choice today because America has at long last come to the realisation that since Eisenhower's entry to the White House her prestige has been dropping to such an alarming extent as to cause serious concern to the country.

It is yet too early to know what Kennedy's foreign policy is going to be, particularly with reference to Britain, but we must not be unduly influenced by pre-election accusations against his father's supposed anti-British feeling during the early stages of the last World War II, as these things are usually raked up to frighten the pro-British elements among the electorate away from him from this first Roman Catholic candidate for the White House tenancy.

However, whatever the new Administration's policy towards the United Kingdom may be, it certainly cannot be as unreliable as the one of the present dying government bearing in mind the shameful part played by the Republican Vice - Presidential candidate during the Suez Incident when he openly sided with his country's mortal enemy Russia to embarrass Britain and made things difficult for us, against the instructions of his own government.

Yet Britain would never agree to any policy that might remotely do harm to her. Ally, unworthy as she is and undependable as she has repeatedly proved herself to be.

With the advent of a new administration, and with Kennedy's liberal-minded policy of giving favourable consideration to the China Question—admission of China to UNO—the prospect of the threat of a third world war would appear to have receded for the immediate present, though Formosa is said to be all fluttered wondering when the US is going to chuck her into the waste basket and let Mao Tse-tung dine on the 'leftover' of the former Japanese 'colony'.

Whilst none in the free world can admit any love for Communist China, to isolate her by banning her from UNO is an unrealistic policy, as among the Communist countries in Europe and elsewhere, China alone has been singled out by US for exclusion from the World Council on the alleged abhorrence of her communistic malpractices, and yet she has not shown the same distaste towards China's communist allies, the world over.

It is this bias, this partiality towards Chiang Kai-shek and determined opposition towards Mao Tse-tung that has thrown China more and more into the arms of Soviet Russia, compelling her to be resolute in her own determination to cause as much difficulties to the US as possible in revenge for this loss of 'face' which, to the oriental, is as important as life and death.

It is therefore earnestly hoped that with the installation of the new President, the world will be enabled to sleep soundly.

for a while, without fear of waking up one morning to find another Pearl Harbour confronting us, heralding the assured end of the world.

KENNEDIAN
(A Protestant, nevertheless)

dear sir

Ever been, had?

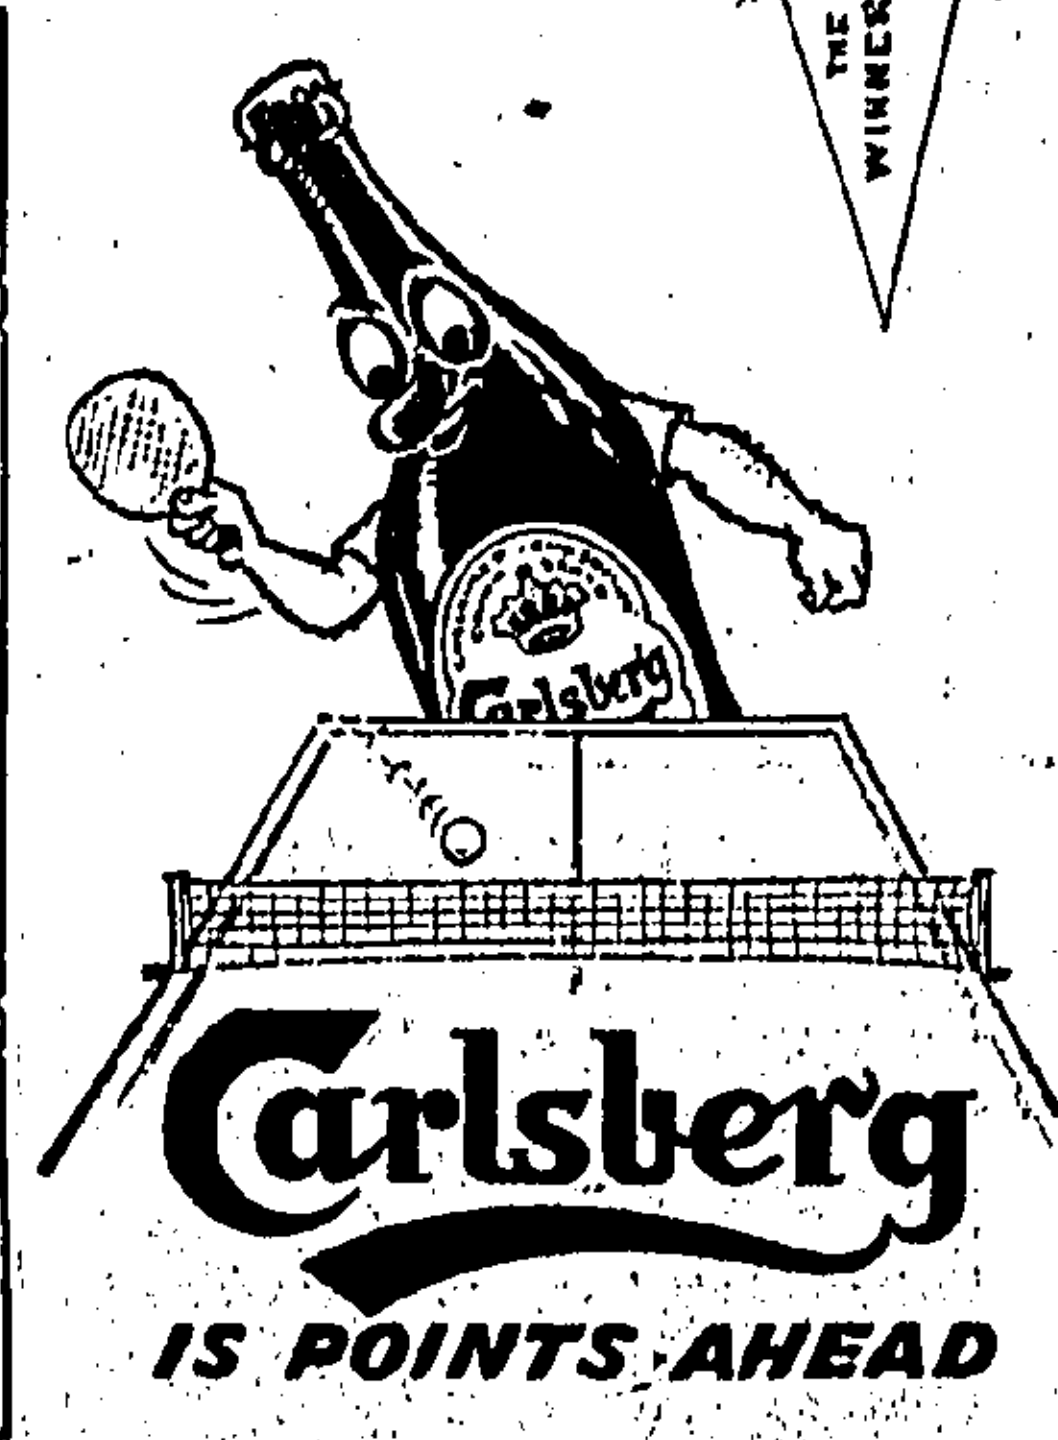

As possibly your correspondent Mr Chow expects a reply to his letter criticising my comment on Lawrence's book, I am happy to oblige him, but let this be my one reply.

Your correspondent takes life far too seriously, lacking a sense of humour, and fails to appreciate that some correspondents, like this present writer, write for the sheer purpose of pertinacious pursuit of publicity that they might become regarded as 'institutions' in the Colony, having people ask "Who is Mr Shake-A-Leg who writes to the Press every day?" and every subject under the sun? and then seeing themselves mentioned would be deliriously happy.

That was my purpose in writing about Lawrence's book, feeling confident that some dumb-bell would fall for the bait, and while all the others have got away, I've caught what I've expected.

On the rest of your correspondent's letter, no comments. Further exchanges may include me out!
